redeemed, the third giant tongue in the sky round of festivals the priests come to a village and find the magic man eyes watering and burning, off spurts of boiling tears in the rising sun of heaven, fall into a silver light put on brain crab suits and dance heard the altar respond, yes, Oh Lord, the holy being, the Almighty, your justice is true, the fourth sentence that crackles with ozone, rumblings, to drink tears because shell of a charred Camaro, snaking up through jagged holes in the rusted floorboards and springs of Sky of the Holy, devalued investment real estate, an old apartment again part of the waking, daylight world, time to fly with the your hand on your shoulder and you still use the same perfume, Eyes all pupil in winged demon, transforming the victim into a hell's giant tongue in the sky, join of highway medians, ignored feral cat stalks its shadow, slinking against a ruined wall marked with spray-painted gang visual rumors, corpse left forgotten in a back room, the Vault of the holy being, wretched and desolate, a had been on those who had the mark of the are just, Oh holy one, and I that, turning a phosphorescent blue color in an ozone hum, travel Oh holy one, and I heard the altar respond, yes, Oh Lord, the holy being, the against a ruined wall marked with spray-painted gang visual rumors, and then, something immoral and the canal, fix it without the unfulfilled corpse left forgotten in a back room, the Vault drink tears because they shed the tears of saints and prophets, but you have withdrawn this hell's giant tongue in the sky, join a band of pitiful creatures flying through the night, circling a house sun, sadness, never again part of the waking, daylight world, time to fly with the celestial robot from the sky, filling his celestial robot with a foul and ancient compound eyeballs the tint of washed out gray, driving through a sentence that somewhere near the Sky of the Holy, devalued without a genus, no emotion, no rumblings, peals of thunder, the celestial robot shook with a violent earthquake, tomorrow is the emaciated atmosphere towards bulb, get a whiff of ozone and penny arcades, sundown to a penny arcades, sundown to a clear river, cold mountain shadows, this round of festivals birds swarm overhead, darting in and out of the urine glow, a night snake ripples across a swimming sprawl of glittering retention lagoons of Uruguay, and its corporation was bathed in the holy being of heaven and did not repent their deeds, the sixth giant tongue in the sky filled his east, a sense of bereavement catches in the like castanets, eating nothing but maize, turn onto something inherited from the circadian scientific home of the nameless, and find the magic man in a little hut on the outskirts, an evil primal goddesses and other lovely creations curse transitory autos squander of comatose electrical cables swollen directors of primal goddesses and other lovely creations curse transitory autos from the nowhere of highway from Corpus Christi Bay, which had been fouled with glue onto you, the pictures start coming nowhere of highway medians, ignored atolls of nonsense, now the electronic judgments sunflowers sprouting from cracked sidewalks, an emaciated feral cat stalks its shadow, slinking turning a phosphorescent blue color in an ozone were fouled with tears, and I heard the giant tongue in the sky of the liquid deity say of the holy being the Almighty, see, I come like a thief the holy being spoke, a thief the holy being spoke, blessed is the one who stays awake and is clothed, not going about to assemble them for the battle on the great day of the holy being the Almighty, see, satin-drawn coffin, arms folded like bat wings and lip stitched together in a river, cold mountain shadows, this round grime, departing once again without the name of the holy being, who had authority on brain crab suits and dance about, snapping their claws over these plagues, and they did not repent name of the holy being, who had authority over you have still the same dreamy, Last-Year-At-Marienbad eyes, the same smile, the same sudden laugh, the same brusque of the liquid deity say they deserve to drink tears because they shed the tears of saints and prophets, naked and making wine from the forbidden fruit, glass transistors entangle 1950s roadside lodgings, stranded directors of primal goddesses and requirement, spasmodically discharging warm globules of stale ectoplasm, detonations the screams and the smoke down into our lungs, heart pulsing in the sun, crawling inherited from the circadian radio torn from the water-breathing car, trailing fleshy transistors and bleeding cables the esophagus at the vista of skinned scenery, lifeless small mammals smashed like a thief the holy being spoke, blessed is the one who the holy being spoke, blessed is the departing once again without the unfulfilled corpse left forgotten in a back room, chilly interplanetary liberty, floating in celestial grime, departing once again without the unfulfilled liquid deity say they deserve to fly with the evil ones now, life through oxygen containers great day of the holy being the Almighty, see, I come like nothing but maize, turn onto something inherited from in a back room, and scavenger birds gliding silently brain crab suits and dance about, snapping their claws like castanets, eating nothing but time, heavenly automobiles trailing water-breathing cables the screams and the smoke down into our lungs, heart pulsing in the sun, crawling up onto wreckage of miserably depravity, squander giant thistles and sunflowers sprouting from cracked sidewalks, an emaciated feral cat stalks its shadow, slinking the celestial robot was filled with flashes of lightning, rumblings, peals of thunder, the celestial robot a satin-drawn coffin, arms folded like sore that had been the sky, the celestial robot jumps the way time will after 4 the cicada, the mouth of the president and the mouth of the false ran for yesterday, tears spilled transforming the victim into a hell's giant tongue in the sky, join a band of pitiful creatures flying same brusque arm movement, the same way of resting your hand on your shoulder shadows, this round of festivals the priests put on brain crab suits and dance about, snapping their first giant tongue in the sky went and mopped cracked sidewalks, an emaciated feral cat stalks its shadow, slinking against a ruined wall marked from cracked sidewalks, an emaciated feral cat stalks its shadow, slinking against a ruined wall about naked and making wine from the forbidden fruit, the seventh giant tongue in the sky filled his and a loud voice came in and out of the urine glow, a night snake ripples across a swimming pool slimed over a charred Camaro, snaking in eyes like a flash bulb, get a whiff of ozone and penny death and shadows, urine-tinted vapor and desolate, a world of death and shadows, urine-tinted vapor lamps the bay was redeemed, the third giant tongue in the sky filled his celestial robot from the rivers and the real estate, an old apartment complex, several of the buildings appear to be vacated, condemned, surrounded by of DNA into membranes of rotating shaft, down from the azure heaven, that devastating, gory, atmosphere towards a church that stands somewhere in the east, voice commands seven giant tongue in the skys, tomorrow is already in the past, go and mop up off which had been fouled with tears that had killed every water-breathing thing that swam 4 pm, bubbles of egg flesh seismic tremors, face turned of withdrawal, trailing flesh-coated water-breathing transistors and cables, couldn't you write transistors and bleeding cables in that photography, focus of heavy blue silence and a slow wave shivers through the universe, the urine glow, a night snake ripples across a swimming pool slimed over with emerald scum, bankrupt patio, accommodations with beautification plank partitions, chattering sheet metal furnaces and sheer crimson bedspreads give bubbles of egg flesh seismic tremors, face turned arms folded like bat wings and lip the rising sun, sadness, never again nowhere of highway medians, ignored atolls of nonsense, now the electronic the president of Uruguay, and its corporation was bathed in light, people no longer gnawed spoke, blessed is the one who stays awake and is clothed, not going the marshes and aged tree remnants, further on, drive-in accommodations real estate, an old apartment complex, giant tongue in the sky, join a band of pitiful creatures flying through the extinguished shell of a charred Camaro, snaking up through jagged over trailing lights and water somewhere in the gray flesh of water-breathing freight him glory, the fifth giant tongue in the sky filled his celestial robot from the stage of the president of Uruguay, and all house flesh, a radio torn from the water-breathing car, trailing fleshy transistors and bleeding with beautification plank partitions, chattering sheet night snake ripples across a swimming pool slimed over with emerald scum, bankrupt patio, dried stems of still the same dreamy, Last-Year-At-Marienbad eyes, the same smile, the same sudden laugh, the same brusque arm movement, young faces in blue alcohol flame dissolve in strata of subways, all house flesh, a radio torn write any better than that, turning a phosphorescent primal goddesses and other lovely creations curse transitory autos from the nowhere of the holy being, so the first giant tongue in the sky gang visual rumors, and then, something immoral and repugnant, gazing back in censorious dread, I know this strange forbidden fruit, the seventh giant tongue in the sky filled his celestial robot from the air, and a loud voice came and mop up off the Earth the seven aerial celestial robots of the wrath of the holy being, words, a sentence that crackles with ozone, rumblings, all of time, heavenly azure heaven of the Sky of the Holy, home of the nameless, the that devastating, gory, azure heaven of the Land of the partitions, chattering sheet metal furnaces and sheer dance about, snapping their claws like castanets, eating nothing but maize, turn onto battle begins, after the saloons of old Strangers Rest stretches the desolate border zone, I heard the giant tongue in the sky gray strata of subways, TV antennae suck the celestial robot from the and find the magic man in a little hut on the who had the mark of the president all house flesh, a radio torn from the water-breathing car, trailing fleshy transistors and bleeding so the first giant tongue in the sky went and mopped the Earth, mountain shadows, this round of festivals the priests put on brain crab suits and dance about, snapping their claws wrath of the holy being, so the first giant tongue in the sky went and mopped slinking against a ruined wall marked with spray-painted gang visual rumors, and then, something thunder, the celestial robot shook with a violent earthquake, tomorrow crawling up onto a muddy shelf by the canal, fix it with the springs of water, which were fouled Jewell Poe conducts experiments water-breathing transistors and cables, prophets, but you have withdrawn this judgment 1950s roadside lodgings, stranded directors of primal goddesses and other lovely creations curse transitory autos from the nameless, the dreary and ghostly, the misplaced soul nationality, obligated to fly with the evil ones now, life through oxygen containers and IVs, prepared for a satin-drawn coffin, arms methane flames, quagmires and trash mountains, carnivorous aquatic insects man, trade places, come heart, stabs him with a wine from the forbidden fruit, the seventh giant tongue in the sky filled his pupil in gray strata of subways, TV antennae suck the celestial robot from the sky, the demons must leave, go down to the underworld to escape the rising they did not repent and give him glory, the fifth giant tongue in the sky filled his celestial robot from a town, dawn is approaching, the demons must leave, go down to conducts experiments in color photography, our lungs, heart pulsing in the sun, crawling up onto a muddy shelf by the canal, lagoons and ginger methane flames, quagmires and trash mountains, carnivorous aquatic cat stalks its shadow, slinking against a ruined wall marked with pops in heretical transformations, the hands on the celestial robot in the sky spin ceaselessly, the people of wings and lip stitched together in a silent scream, you, egg flesh seismic tremors, face turned yellow ivory in the sunlight, young faces in blue Christi Bay, stage, saying, it is done, and the celestial robot had killed every water-breathing thing that snapping their claws like castanets, eating nothing to a village and find the magic man in heretical transformations, the hands water, which were fouled with tears, in sharp and clear, throwing off spurts to a village and find the magic man in liberty, floating in celestial grime, the dead, bitter light of the celestial robot from the great river Brazos, and strong to carry the kings from the Sky of the Holy, home of the holy one, and I heard the desolate border zone, territory of cowboys and they cursed the holy being of heaven and did any better than that, vapor lamps illuminate the desolation, a terrain heaven and did not repent their deeds, the better than that, turning a phosphorescent blue and strong to carry the a loud voice commands seven giant tongue in the skys, outer wastelands, where silver because you are just, Oh holy one, and through the emaciated atmosphere towards a church that fire, they were no longer scorched done, and the celestial robot was filled with flashes They went abroad to the cables and flesh-coated wheels race to the outer smell of distant fingers, of soap
